the following in the revolutionary records.

"Massachusetts soldiers and sailors of the revolutionary war." Boston, 1900. Francis Hipinstal, Marblehead, defence of seacoast. This name also appears under the form of Hippinstawl, Hipinstall) v. 7, page 352.
U. S. Pay dept. (War Dept.) Pierce's register, Washington, 1915. Caleb Hippinstall and James Hipkinstall, Virginia, paid November 15, 1783. Page 394.

Virginia State Library. List of the revolutionary soldiers of Virginia. Richmond, 1912. Caleb Hephinstall - War 4, 213 (MS) page 214. and James Hipkenstall, Bounty Warrants (MS) War 4, 221; War 5, 88 (MS) page 219.

While the spelling of the above names is somewhat irregular, there is no doubt in my mind but that they are Hippenstiel, as I have notice similar irregular spelling of the earlier Hippenstiels that we know of. Therefore, it is likely that one may meet a Hippenstiel not listed or referred to on these charts, and if anyone should come in touch with any such Hippenstiel the author will appreciate it very much if he would be put in touch with the new person.

Like all old names, there is a real meaning to the name Hippenstiel, but it is not quite clear just exactly what the meaning is, as it is indeed a very old name. In the book "Die deutschen Familiennamen" by P. ref. Albert Heintze (Halle, 1914) page 174, we find that Hipp or Hippen is derived from the Old-Saxon "hild" meaning in German "Kampf" that is, combat, fight, "Stiel" according to page 268 of the same book, signifies in German "Gerät" which means implement, handle.

"Deutsches Wörterbuch" by Jacob and Wilhelm Grimm, Bd. 4, 2 Abth. Leipzig, 1877, gives Heppe or Hepe, as a feminine noun meaning a knife in the shape or form of a sickle for gardeners and pruning. This form of Heppe was later changed to Hipppe, for we find in Friedrich Kluge's "Etymological dictionary of the German language" translated from the 4th German edition by John Francis Davis, London, 1891, that Hipppe means sickle, being a Mid. German form introduced by Luther into the Modern High German literary language instead of Heppe from hepe and häppe meaning then a pruning-hook. The same root in the French language means a hatchet.

The root word is found also in Old English and Scandinavian. There are a number of other references that can be cited, but perhaps the clearest meaning we can gather is that Hippen means a sickle-shaped knife, and stiel, a handle. The combination may have been a useful agricultural tool, and a weapon used something like a sword. The original Hippenstiel was therefore apparently identified by the skillful use of the sword in combat, or by its skillful use in agricultural work, or from an occupational standpoint, perhaps made the sickle part and the handle, or perhaps was a skilled blacksmith in making the special kind of handle required for the particular sword or sickle.

In looking over the names of our family as spelled in the Church records in Germany, we find that around the year 1700 the name was spelled Heppenstael and Heppenstiel, so there does not seem to be any question but that the spelling of the name was changed to Hippenstiel by the introduction of reformed spelling by Martin Luther, as mentioned in the second paragraph of this section. I have been wondering, therefore, whether some of the persons in the United States who bear the name Heppenstall, and similar, are not of the same forefather as we who spell our name Hippenstiel. The author would be glad to hear from anyone who has looked more thoroughly into this.

One rumor is that the Hippenstiels are of Swedish abstraction, the forefather having come from Sweden with King Augustus during the Thirty Years War, about 1610, and then settled in Richstein or vicinity. The other belief is that the Hippenstiels from earliest times lived in Richstein, and that they are of Hessian abstraction of the tribe of Chattin. See chart No. 2.

Now of the Hippenstiel families living in the different sections of the United States of America seemed to know anything of their forefathers, nor in fact, of their more distant relatives. My grandfather was quite small when his father died, and the family became scattered, and knowing of a few cousins and second cousins, we thought that we were the only persons on the face of this earth with the name Hippenstiel.

Somewhere, in 1920, I became more or less interested in knowing more about the Hippenstiels with the result that we found a very large relationship. I have gathered so much material together that I thought it best to assemble it in intelligent form for distribution, although it is not near complete. I am doing this with the hope that some person of each of the several Hippenstiel family lines will take up the work where I have left off, and follow it to completion, and publish the work in permanent form.

I have adopted the method of making copies by the blue print process for the reason that it is, first, the most convenient way for us, and second, as this historical and genealogical work is not complete, it should be issued first in a temporary form.

The life of these blue prints, therefore, is not very long, owing to the process by which they are made.

If any of this information is to be preserved for the future, and handed down to posterity, it must be copied in ink in a copy book with good paper and stiff cloth covers, and kept in a safe place. The better way would be for those who finish this work to have it printed in permanent book form, and this is strongly recommended.

I am, therefore, hoping that someone will take up the good work where I have left off, and continue it to completion, and by some means be able to publish the entire work in book form, printed on good paper for permanence, and to this end I will be very glad to cooperate at any time.

The issue of this information in temporary form will also permit of corrections of mistakes and the supplying of omissions, etc., of which there are no doubt quite a few.

Russell Avenue, Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, May 21, 1925

Very sincerely yours,

Harold Franklin Hippenstiel

The number of Charts issued in this tentative form as "The Hippenstiel Families in America" is eleven (11) as follows. These are the only Hippenstiel family lines in America that are known at the present time. There may be others, of which there is evidence a hundred or more years ago. There are also a number of family lines in Germany which came from the same place and stem as the family lines now in America, of which the five known of at the present time are as follows:

Chart Number Two - exhibits a large scale map of the small district of Kreis Wittgenstein, in which is located Richtein and Fischelbach, the native villages of the Hippenstiel families.

Chart Number Three - The descendants of Johan Kraft Hippenstiel, born in Richtein Hill, August 24, 1796, and who emigrated to and arrived in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, September 19, 1819. His descendants are found mostly in the State of New Jersey and the City of Philadelphia.

Charts Numbers Four, Five and Six and One Half (4, 5, 5-1/2) - The descendants of Johan Konrad Hippenstiel, born in the village of Richtein, July 3, 1791, who came to America with his brother, sister, and Cousin, arriving Philadelphia, September 19, 1819. His descendants are found in and about Bloomsburg and Berwick, Columbia County, Pennsylvania.

Charts Numbers Six, Seven, and One Half (6, 7, 7-1/2) - The descendants of Johan Kraft Hippenstiel, born in the village of Richtein, the youngest of a family of six, November 11, 1794. He came to America single with his brother, sister and cousin, arriving Philadelphia, September 19, 1819. His descendants are found in Hellertown, Bethlehem, Emmaus, Pennsylvania, and in the State of Ohio and one family in South Carolina. The author of these charts is of this line.

Chart Number Eight (8) - The descendants of Johanna Maria Hippenstiel, born Richtein September 10, 1783. She was married in Richtein to George Wilhelm Fischer, and they had a family of four children when they emigrated to America with her brothers and cousin in 1819. They settled first in Bucks County, and finally in Ohio, where most of the descendants are living at this writing.

Chart Number Nine (9) - The descendants, as many as we could locate at this time, of the pioneer settler Hippenstiel who settled sometime prior to the Revolutionary War in Cumberland County, Pennsylvania.

Some of the descendants of this line still live in Cumberland County around Shippensburg and Carlisle, and many others in various sections of the State of Indiana, and others in several Western States.

The volume in the Pennsylvania Archives giving the list of immigrants, shows that William Hippenstiel, age 46, Ann Sophia Hippenstiel age 43, Ann Justine Hippenstiel, age 17, and Mary Elizabeth Hippenstiel, age 13, arrived at Philadelphia on July 30th, 1796, on the Brigantine "Mary" from Hamburg. Nothing has been found concerning this line to this date.

There were apparently Hippenstiel families in Massachusetts and in Virginia at the time of the Revolutionary war, as we find the following in the revolutionary records.

"Massachusetts soldiers and sailors of the revolutionary war." Boston, 1906. Francis Hippenstiel, Barbours, defense of seacoast. This name also appears under the form of Hippenstiel, Hippenstall) v. 7, page 352.

U. S. Pay Dept. (War Dept.) Pierce's register, Washington, 1915. Caleb Hippenstall and James Hippenstall, Virginia, paid November 15, 1783. Page 394.

Virginia State Library. List of the revolutionary soldiers of Virginia. Richmond, 1912. Caleb Hippenstall - War 4, 213 (MS) page 214, and James Hippenstall, Bounty warrants (MS) War 4, 221, War 5, 88 (MS) page 217.

While the spelling of the above names is somewhat irregular, there is no doubt in my mind but that they are Hippenstiel. As I have notice similar irregular spelling of the earlier Hippenstiels that we know of. Therefore, it is likely that one may meet a Hippenstiel not listed or referred to on these charts, and if anyone should come in touch with any such Hippenstiel the author will appreciate it very much if he would be put in touch with the new person.

"Deutsches Wörterbuch" by Jacob and Wilhelm Grimm, Bd. 4, 2 Arth. Leipzig, 1877, gives Heppe or Heps, as a feminine noun meaning a knife in the shape or form of a sickle for gardeners and pruning. This form of Heps was later changed to Hippe, for we find in Friedrich Kluge's "Etymological dictionary of the German language" translated from the 4th German edition by John Francis Davis, London, 1891, that Hippe means sickle, being a Mid. German form introduced by Luther into the Modern High German literary language instead of Heppe from hepe and haype meaning then a pruning-hook. The same root in the French language means a hatchet.

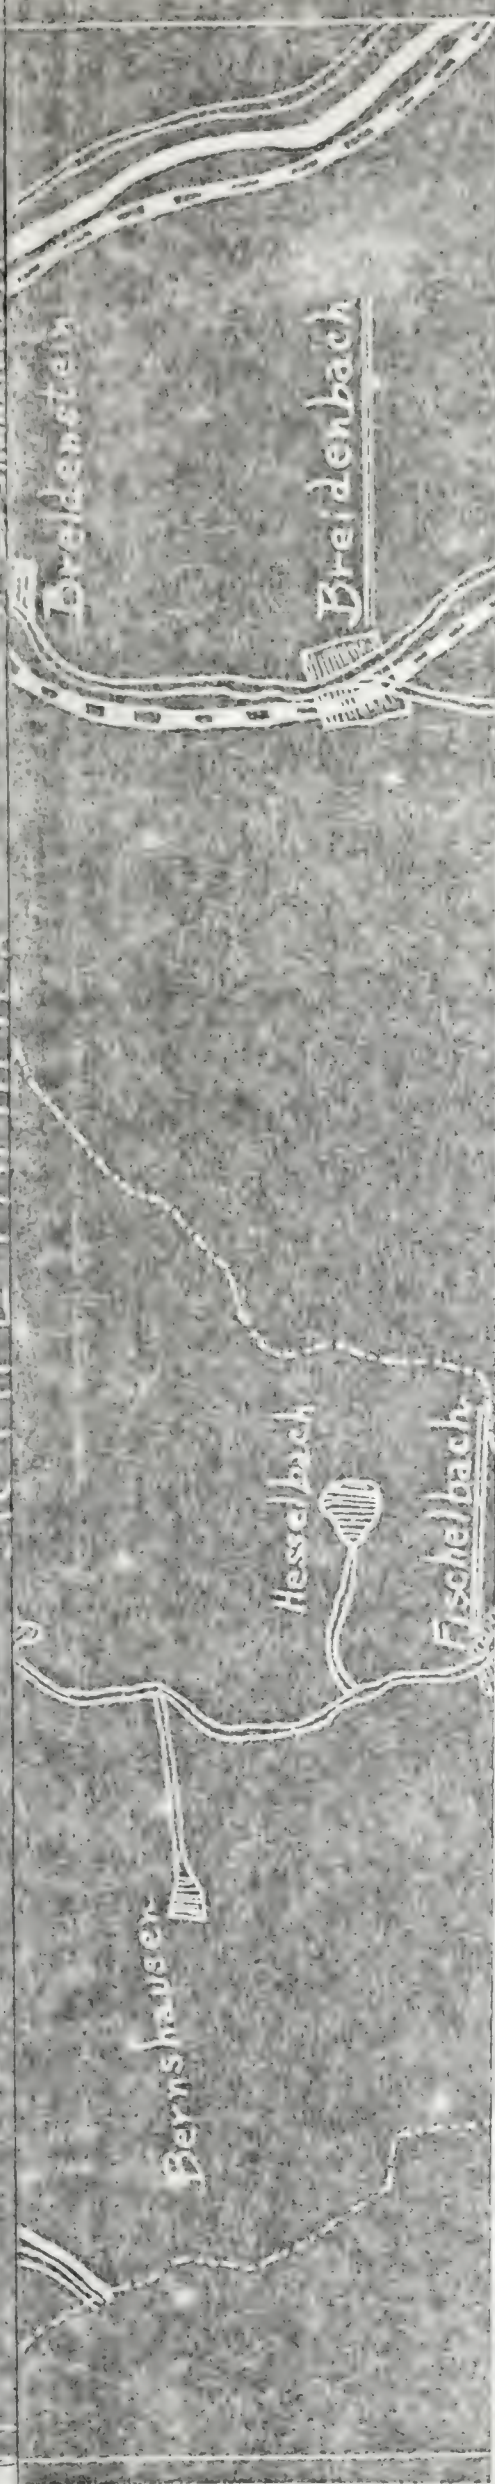

The root word is found also in Old English and Scandinavian. There are a number of other references that can be cited, but perhaps the clearest meaning we can gather is that Hippen means a sicklesheped knife, and stiel, a handle. The combination may have been a useful agricultural tool, and a weapon used something like a sword. The original Hippenstiel was therefore apparently identified by the skillful use of the sword in combat, or by its skillful use in agricultural work, or from an occupational standpoint, perhaps made the sickle part and the handle, or perhaps was a skilled blacksmith in making the special kind of handle required for the particular sword or sickle.

the Prince of Wirtemberg also made the Protestant religion of this district, as early as 1550.

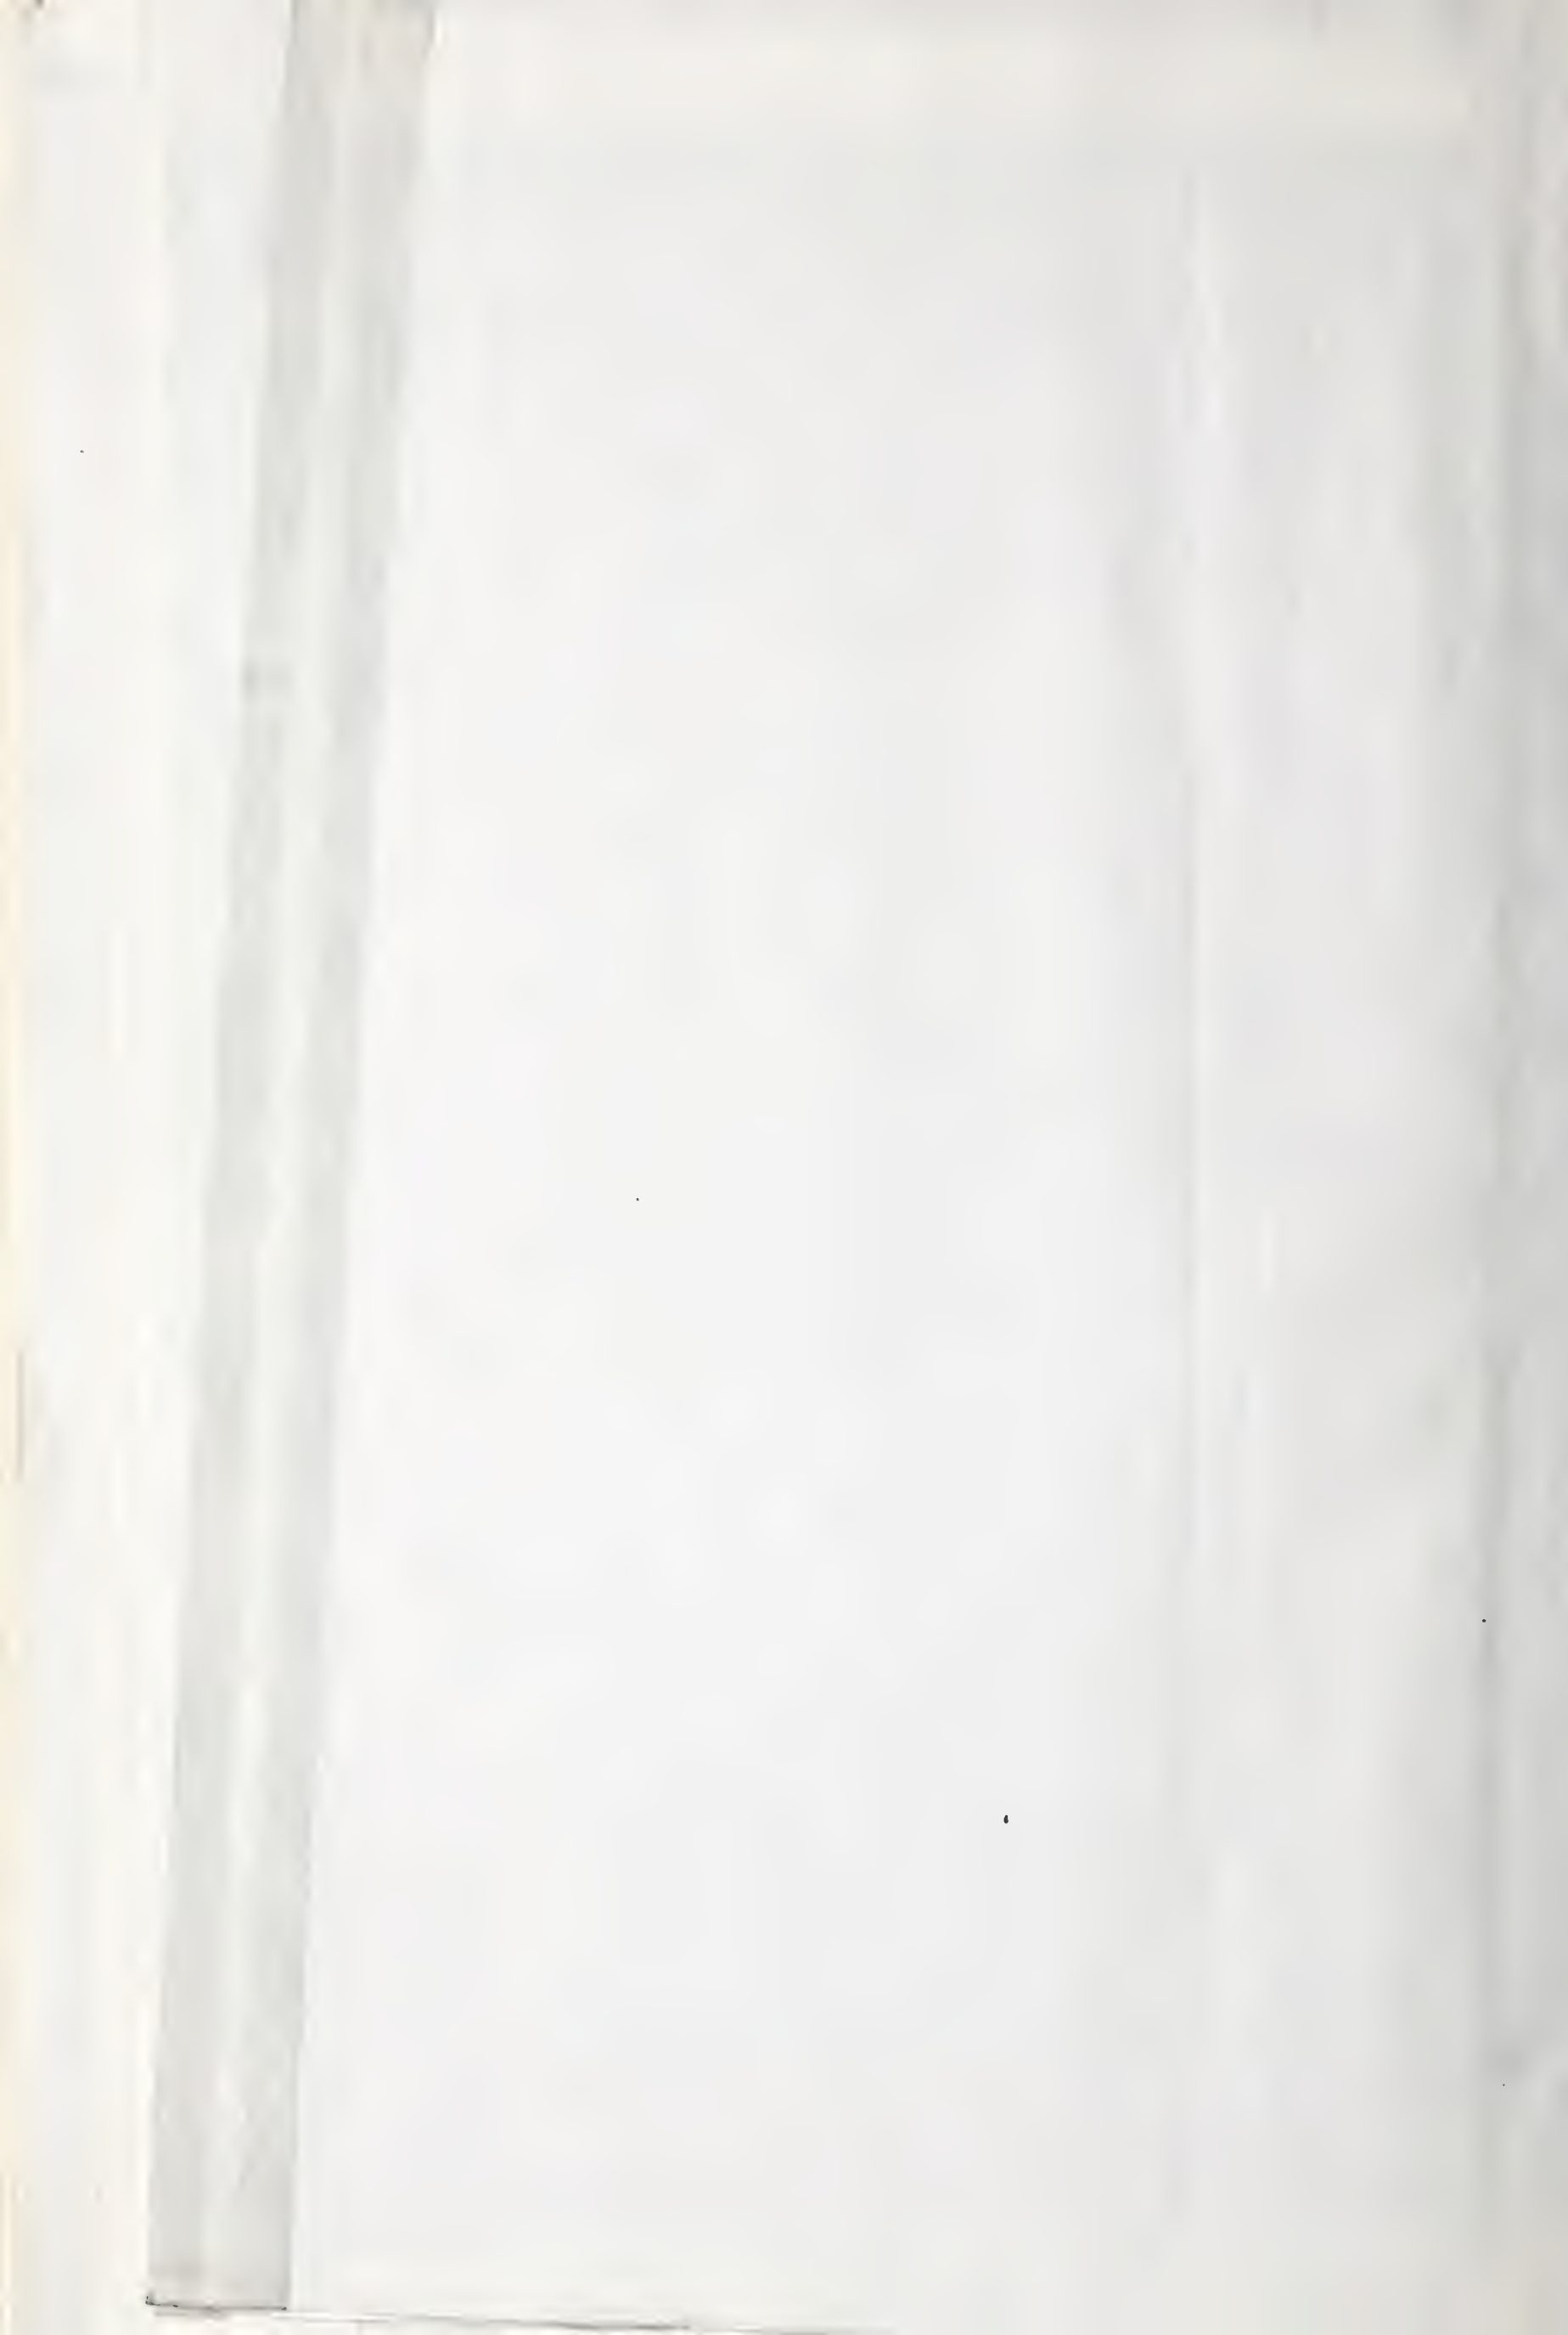

Christopher Sauer, a pioneer printer in Baltimore, Pennsylvania, came from London. The first German Bible and the first German Calendar in America were printed by him.

Since the kind of life on this is very unproductive and labor and time again had to suffer under the migration to America increased. After the war with Japan it was the same. Trade and commerce were at a low ebb, and the harvest failed so that my great-grandfather, his brother, sister, and cousin, haplessly with the hunger, left Repetek on May 19, 1919 and emigrated to America where on found better conditions of life.

It is claimed that whole villages in America were founded and established by emigrants from Wittgenstein. For example, there is located the Sepulchry Ordnance Home of the Reformed Church, was no doubt named after Wolfenbutter, the small village on the Western border of Wittgenstein. Many Wittgensteiners found their home in Hungary. There were emigrants who also to other parts of the new continent, and even in Ireland has been named after Wittgenstein. As it is possible that one might meet a Happonnietal in almost any part of the world, whose ancestor came from Wittgenstein. When Ireland was under Prussian rule since 1817, much has been done for the good of the land.

through the building of railways and railroads, so that there are now a chain of better earnings, and through industry, and otherwise, the conditions of the country has greatly improved. It is believed that the miserable conditions have repeated themselves in this district at the close of the World War.

Kienelbach and Kienelstein seem to be the village wherein the earlier Hippinitels lived. In Kienelstein they may be traced as far back as 1870, which is all the further the Zuehlke records go back. Descendants still live in these villages, and Hippinitels will be found at this writing also in Saxony, Posenburg, Paderbornen, Bonn, and also in Prussia, and in the Netherlands. It is believed that these can be located in other sections of Germany.

being to the process by which this blue print is made, it will fade and be illegible for a short time only. When not in use please keep in folder and in a safe place away from the light, say in a drawer or safe with your other valuable papers. It is suggested that you buy a good copy book with stiff covers and copy in it with ink such information as you may wish to keep and hand down to your descendants, as once this information has faded from this chart, it cannot be gathered together again.

At the present writing there are only FIVE known different branches at the Hippenstiel family in the United States of America. The earliest immigrant, settled in Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, sometime before the American Revolution, and the descendants of this line are scattered in Indiana, Ohio, and a number of Western States, and some families are still to be found resident in Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, also in and near Harrisburg, Penna. Nothing definite is known at this time as to the name of the father and progenitor of this line, just exactly where he first settled, and where he came from. See Chart Number VIII.

Another branch is the line of Johan Kraft Hippenstiel, the son of a Miller who had a large family. He was born May 2, 1794 at Reichstein, Prussia, in the province of Westphalia, Prussia, Germany. He came to America in 1809 with his three sons (mentioned next) and settled in Philadelphia. He married a lady from Philadelphia, lived there most of his life, and both are buried in Mount Zion Cemetery, Philadelphia. Their descendants are found resident in Philadelphia, and in and around Burlington and Rochester, New Jersey. For further particulars of this line see Chart Number Three. For we take up next the line from which the persons listed on this chart are descended. In the little village of Reichstein, situated between Arolsen and Laupheim in Westphalia (See Chart IV) Westphalia, Germany, there lived a Hippenstiel of this family who has in his possession an old Bible. In which is recorded the fact that Johan Conrad Hippenstiel and his wife Maria were united in the holy bonds of matrimony on the third day of February, 1760. They were poor simple peasants and brought into the world the following children:

- (a) Johann Heinrich Hippenstiel, born November 18, 1760.
- (b) Johanna Maria Hippenstiel, born September 30, 1763.
- (c) Maria Elizabeth Hippenstiel, born July 11th, 1765.
- (d) Katharina Dorothea Hippenstiel, born July 6th, 1768.

(e) Johann Conrad Hippenstiel, born July 3, 1771.

(f) Johann Kraft Hippenstiel, born November 18th, 1774.

Johan Heinrich (a), Maria Elizabeth (c) and Katharina Dorothea (d) all did not come to America at this time, and it is believed that they and their families remained in the land of their nativity. Johann Maria Hippenstiel (b) was married in Reichstein to George Wilhelm Fricke. They had six children, four born in Reichstein, and two born in Bucks County, Penna. They later emigrated to Ohio, to which State a number of their descendants are now living, as also in Indiana, Pennsylvania. See Chart Number Four.

Johan Kraft Hippenstiel (f), is the great-grandfather of the author of this work. He was eight when he arrived in America, married a lady from Bucks County, settled in Springfield Township, and died at middle age before all the children of his family had grown to manhood and womanhood. Three sons and one daughter emigrated with their families to Ohio, and settled first around Akron. These other boys died early in life, unmarried. The rest of the children, four in number, remained in the vicinity of their birthplace and their descendants are now found in Pennsylvania, Michigan and Maine. Pennsylvania and surrounding places. See Chart Number XI.

JOHAN CONRAD HIPPENSTIEL (e), the line represented in this chart, was also single when he arrived in America. Conrad, like his brother Johan Kraft, and his cousin Johan Kraft (Chart Three), all came with the Johann and his Hippenstiel family (Chart Three) to America, leaving Reichstein, their place of birth, on July 18th, 1814. They arrived September 15, 1814 in Philadelphia on the ship GORDON which sailed from Hamburg. Conrad apparently kept a short diary of this trip in a small book, which is now in the possession of Mrs. Henry Hippenstiel of Germantown, Pa. From it we gather that they journeyed to America, arriving there about the first of July, 1814. They got on the boat GORDON on the third of July, and the next day from Philadelphia after dinner on the twenty-third day. On the twenty-fourth day the boat got stuck in the sand, and the captain with horses could not pull it off the mud bar until the next day when the tide came in a little higher. In August they came into a very great storm on the lake. On the 25th of August they remained in the sand bar, and Conrad wrote that on the 1st of September they came a day to the ship and brought down the first men of the team and they were glad to see the dock and the water and ever here. In the 16th of September at eight o'clock in the morning a pilot came from Philadelphia to order the vessel into the harbor. They were then slowly towed from the mud bar in September 18th, 1814.

Mrs. Mary Hippenstiel, nee Maria Elizabeth, was married to Conrad. The latter married Johan Kraft, and was a native of Reichstein. As is evident from the fact that the name of the family is Hippenstiel, and not Kraft, it is evident that the family of Conrad is a branch of the family of Johan Kraft. The name of the family is Hippenstiel, and not Kraft, it is evident that the family of Conrad is a branch of the family of Johan Kraft.

The above families (a), (c), and (d) settled in Philadelphia Township, in Bucks County, Pennsylvania. The first family (a) settled in Philadelphia Township, in Bucks County, Pennsylvania. The first family (a) settled in Philadelphia Township, in Bucks County, Pennsylvania. The first family (a) settled in Philadelphia Township, in Bucks County, Pennsylvania.

Johan Kraft Hippenstiel (f) was born October 20th, 1812 in Bucks County, Pennsylvania. He was a farmer, and according to a record in the township records, he was buried in the cemetery of the township of Bucks County, Pennsylvania. He was a farmer, and according to a record in the township records, he was buried in the cemetery of the township of Bucks County, Pennsylvania.

They had seven children as noted in Section I, following. Peter's wife was purchased June 23, 1816, at Philadelphia. They had seven children as noted in Section I, following. Peter's wife was purchased June 23, 1816, at Philadelphia. They had seven children as noted in Section I, following.

THOMAS HIPPENSTIEL was born July 17th, 1823 in Bucks County. His first wife was Sophia Fry, she died June 14th, 1880 at the age of 57 years, 1 month and 21 days. His second wife was Elizabeth Bachman, she and his first wife are buried in Housatonic Cemetery, Brainerd Township, Bucks County, Pennsylvania. He died October 2nd, 1893. (In the Housatonic Cemetery, Brainerd Township, Bucks County, Pennsylvania, there is a tombstone bearing this inscription - Maria - wife of T. Hippenstiel, died February 18th, 1869, aged about 21 years.) Conrad married Betsey Buckle, she was born September 5th, 1836 and died June 14th, 1911. Both are buried in Housatonic Cemetery in Brainerd Township.

(d) ELIZABETH HIPPENSTIEL was born in Bucks County October 9th, 1825. Died September 11, 1901. She was married to Isaac Linsdale, who was born October 14th, 1824 and died November 24th, 1897. Mr. Linsdale was a farmer and they lived in Brainerd Township, Bucks County, Pennsylvania. Both are buried in Housatonic Cemetery, Brainerd Township, Bucks County, Pennsylvania.

(e) JACOB HIPPENSTIEL was born in Bucks County on July 6th, 1828. Died May 2, 1892. She was married to Peter George Bachman, who was born September 10, 1833, and died January 7, 1900. Both are buried in Housatonic Cemetery in Brainerd Township, Bucks County, Pennsylvania.

(f) JOHANN HIPPENSTIEL, twin brother of Conrad, was born November 5th, 1830. He was a farmer in Mount Pleasant Township near Germantown, Penna., and the last ten years of his life he lived retired in Light Street, Columbia County. He died October 25, 1913. His first wife was Mary Catherine Kellie, born October 10th, 1840, and died March 17th, 1881. The wife was born Henry William Hippenstiel. His second wife was Margaret West, born March 10th, 1836, died January 3rd, 1912. In this union were born six children as noted in Section II.

(g) JACOB HIPPENSTIEL, twin brother of Anna, was born May 9th, 1833 and died July 24th, 1914. He was married to John West, who was born October 21, 1825 and died June 21, 1913. Mr. West was a farmer and they lived in Brainerd Township, Bucks County, Pennsylvania. Both are buried in Housatonic Cemetery, Brainerd Township, Bucks County, Pennsylvania.

(h) CHRISTIANA HIPPENSTIEL was born April 5th, 1836, baptised July 29, 1836, and died September 23, 1876. She married John Beaster Wylie, born August 23, 1837, died February 6th, 1916. After Christiana's death, John married Christiana's niece Mary (Section 4). They are buried in Mount Pleasant Township about one and one half miles northwest of Light Street, Christiana Township, Bucks County, Pennsylvania. Both are buried in Housatonic Cemetery, Brainerd Township, Bucks County, Pennsylvania.

The descendants of the above have, for the past seventeen years, held an annual family reunion. The first reunion was held and organized in June, 1907 at Columbia Park, Columbia County. The first effort elected was President, Charles Hippenstiel of Brainerd. Secretary, William Hippenstiel of Hobbsville. Treasurer, Joseph E. Hippenstiel of Light Street. Reunions have since been held at Brainerd Park, at Leesport, at this place is more central for all the descendants. In 1911, the first reunion was held at Brainerd Park, at Leesport, at this place is more central for all the descendants. In 1911, the first reunion was held at Brainerd Park, at Leesport, at this place is more central for all the descendants.

The first and second generations have been given in this chart. On Chart five following are the third, fourth and fifth generations of this line. The first date given is the date of birth - the last date, the date of decease. When only one date is given, it is the date of birth. Addresses as of June 1924 are also given in a number of cases.

THE HIPPENSTIEL FAMILIES IN AMERICA
BY

The Descendants of Johan Kraft Hippenstiel of Bucks County, Pennsylvania

May 21, 1926.

CHART Number 5 I 1.

Born in Richstein, Germany, November 13, 1794.
and his wife Anna Maria Volmer.

Owing to the process by which this blue print is made, it will fade and be legible for a short time only. The author suggests that it be copied in a good bound record book, using black waterproof ink. This data and information cannot be duplicated, once it is faded.

Johan Kraft Hippenstiel, was born in Richstein, Germany on November 13, 1794, the youngest of the five children of Johan Konrad Hippenstiel and his wife Anna Maria Knifer (or Kieger). The mother died in 1803 or 1804 and as at this time the state was suffering from the experiences of the war with Napoleon, living conditions were extremely bad, and naturally the thoughts of the inhabitants of Kreis Mitgenstein turned to America as a Haven, as it had done years before to the people of Germany. Three members of this family, one cousin, and others left Richstein on May 19th, 1819, and at Amsterdam, Holland, embarked on the Brigantine OSGOOD, which arrived in Philadelphia on September 19th, 1819. Our ancestor, with his brother Johan Konrad (see chart No. four) and his sister (see chart No. eight - Fischer) settled in Bucks County near Springfield and Springtown. His cousin Johan Kraft (see chart No. three) apparently stayed in Philadelphia and later settled near Burlington, New Jersey.

Our ancestor for apparently had just finished his apprenticeship, for the author has in his possession a certificate which is dated May 6th, 1819 and reads as follows: "By request of the Blacksmith's Assistant, Kraft Hippenstiel, born here and raised by the worthy Conrad Hippenstiel and his wife Anna Maria, in Richstein, it is hereby certified; that the same during his apprenticeship has shown himself faithful, industrious and bore himself in a most exemplary manner. At the same time it is hereby certified in behalf of the above mentioned Kraft Hippenstiel that during his whole life time he has so behaved himself that he may be pointed out as a model well-bred youth. He is not only able to do a smith's work - but also farm work of every description, field and meadow culture he understands in best form. Since he is minded to perfect the handicraft he has learned and journey to other towns - this testimony is given by us."

In the year 1825 Kraft applied for Citizenship, and on September 13, 1827, he with his brother Conrad were admitted to full citizenship by the September 1827 Court of Common Pleas at Doylestown, Pennsylvania.

He married Anna Maria Volmer. Her forefathers were early settlers in Bucks County. The name is now often spelled Fulmer. She was born June 7, 1811 and died February 26, 1869 at the age of 57 years, 8 months and 19 days. She is buried at Springfield Church.

Kraft died on the 4th of March 1854 at the age of 59 years, 3 months and 21 days. Whether he followed the Blacksmith's trade is not known, but he rented a small place on the North side of the road from Hollistown to Springtown, located right near to Springtown, which place is now (May 1922) owned by Andrew P. Leith. The house at this time is so old that no one lives in it and the barn or shed has long been destroyed. The house was the usual small type. After Kraft's death, his widow lived until her death in the tenant house on a large farm south of the village of Leithsville. Sometime around the time of his death his brother and family moved to Cumberland County, and his sister - the Fischers - went to Ohio, as did also some of his own children later on.

There were 11 children from this union and information and data concerning them follows:

(1) William Hippenstiel, born November 24, 1828, died October 13, 1853, age 24 - 10 - 19. He is buried at Springfield Church. No information has been obtained as to whether he was married.

(2) Sarah Hippenstiel was born July 13, 1830 at eight o'clock in the evening. Baptized by Herrn Stehr, - Jacob Baron and his wife Hannah were witnesses. She died September 23, 1870. She was married to John Fluck, born August 15th, 1810 and died September 20, 1911. Both are buried in the new section of the Lutheran Cemetery at Springtown. They lived on a farm near Springtown, directly south of the place where Johan Kraft lived until his death. At this writing, one of the children occupy the same farm. This union was blessed with six children:
